PHOTOS BY PAUL HOURIGAN, THE HAMILTON SPECTATOR

It was beginning to look a whole lot like Christmas at Mohawk College last weekend as students and volunteers made their Holiday Village and Craft Show a magical event for visitors. Above: Adriana, left, and Elaina Principato try their skills at decorating a gingerbread house. Undecorated homes were sold for $10, and buyers were invited to dress them up as they wished. The proceeds went to the United Way.

Deborah Taylor custom designed and decorated slender Christmas trees for the show. Good for entranceways, apartments, seniors' homes, even bathrooms, the trees bring Christmas cheer to small spaces.

Christina Mair, of Mairiposa Interior Decorating and Visual Merchandising, has a ball admiring Christmas ornaments for sale at the Mohawk craft show.

Anthony's Stained Glass booth was a popular stop at the show. Anthony, who prefers to be known by his first name, pauses to look at some of his work.

Lorne Kadish sells gifts to light up anyone's life — glass lamps accessorized with a stylish array of objects. For more information, visit thebrilliantgift.com.

A few early birds check out the Mohawk College Holiday Village and Craft Show soon after artists began to work their magic at the Fennell campus.
